

One cloth has gone back on us. We tried to have it "too fine for anything," and it turns out to be too fine for hard wear—surface rubs off.

It's a rather smooth mixed cheviot, brown or gray, with faint black stripe. We made it into men's suits, men's trousers, boys' suits, boys' trousers, small boys' suits, and knickerbockers.

Bring 'em back—won't you, please?—and get your money. They aren't our kind of clothes, and it isn't fair to judge us by an occasional mistake.
